with Graduate Teaching Assistantship***

Thinking about doing a PhD?

The Institute for Education at Bath Spa University is an ideal setting in which to undertake your PhD. Our vision is to be a leading educational institution in creativity, culture and enterprise. We combine practice, research and teaching and are committed to transforming lives.

We have secured funding for PhD studentships designed to encourage innovative and transformative research in a range of areas. In this round, we welcome applications in the following areas:

Disaster education: in particular research related to racial and / or class inequalities in information, guidance and preparedness policies and practice

Led by Professor John Preston email j.preston@bathspa.ac.uk

Inclusion: in particular the D4D project

Led by Professor Martin Levinson email m.levinson@bathspa.ac.uk

Our PhD studentship will support you in planning and developing your career.

You will work with academic staff in a range of teaching, learning and assessment activities to support student learning. Teaching will be paid at current University Postgraduate Teaching Student hourly rates. In addition, you will be expected to gain HEA accreditation (AFHEA) by taking the first part of the University's Postgraduate Certificate in Higher Education.

*Studentships cover tuition fees for three years full time study at Home/EU rates, an annual stipend of £20,000 and an opportunity to work as a Graduate Teaching Assistant which allows you to carry out up to 6 hours of teaching and teaching support each week in term-time, in areas relating to the field of education.
